THE GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, APRIL 16.

A legislature can't do very much in the way of making very many bad laws while a man like Governor Rusk is in the executive chair. His eyes are always open to business.

Recent statistical authority of the Methodist church has published the statement that the membership of the church increased 100,000 during 1886, and now numbers in the United States more than 2,000,000.

The Evening Wisconsin gives the late session of the legislature this left hand compliment: "The body has been in session three months. It merits no credit for a brief session nor yet does it deserve censure for a session unduly protracted."

Governor Hill was not shrewd in choosing the ground of special legislation on which to veto the high license bill. In his short career as governor he has signed over one thousand bills having a special character. But the high license bill interfered with his drink and that he would not permit.

The United States is the only country under the sun that has more money in the treasury than it knows what to do with. Senator Allison, so a dispatch from Washington says, makes the statement that if congress does not convene before December the result will be the accumulation of a surplus of from $40,000,000 to $100,000,000 in addition to that now in the treasury.

The Madison Democrat has a dispatch from Washington which says that Cleveland's popularity is growing, and that his prospects for a recombination are daily improving. That is all right. So accomplished a political gymnast as the president should have the support of his party. Then, upon the theory of the wingwumps that he is better than his party, entitles him to the honor of leader.

This is an age of remarkable progress in book publishing, as will be seen from this statement: "The senior class in English of the California State University have prepared a list of fifty of the best books of the world as published in cheap editions, and find that not one of them costs over 30 cents, while the entire list may be had for $9.22." There is certainly no excuse for any one to remain ignorant in this age, when fifty volumes of the choicest literature of the world can be bought for that price.

Governor Rusk put a pocket veto on the bill providing a home for idiotic and feeble minded children. Attached to the bill is the following from the pen of the governor: "This bill provides for a home for idiotic persons. The state has adopted the county system of care for the chronic insane. Idiots are of the same class of unfortunates as the chronic insane, and in my judgment should be cared for in the same manner. The bill makes no provision for the improvement of the condition of the feeble minded class, but puts them in the same class with the idiotic. An appropriation of $20,000 made, which would not care for 5 per cent of those classes."

Here it is again from the New York Times, which helped to elect this administration: "There is now going on in the surveyor's department of the custom house in this city an amount of purely political and partisanship work, wholly apart from and inconsistent with the administration of public business, that has not been exceeded under any surveyor that we have ever had." O hush! Don't get troubled. This is a reform administration.

A GOOD VETO.

One would suppose there was wisdom enough in the legislature to kill the bill which provided for the election of the regents of the state university. But there wasn't. Right in face of the fact that such a method would unquestionably hurt the university by throwing the election of the regents into politics, and making it very likely that unfit men would be often times elected to the board of regents, both houses go to work and deliberately pass the bill. No educational institution of that kind can feel the touch of political meddling without suffering a severe loss.

So it rested upon Governor Rusk to kill the bill, and he did it without hesitation as he performs every public duty that devolves upon him.

The bill was defective in other ways which the legislature did not seem to understand. The bill provided for the election of nine members of the board of regents by congressional districts, three for two years, three for four years and three for six years. It also provided that the present board of regents should serve for two years, which for four years or which for six years. It also provided that the present board of regents should serve the term for which they were appointed. It also made the conflicting provision that the terms of all the regents elected under the bill shall begin on the first Monday in February, 1889, whereas the terms of four members of the present board will not expire till the first Monday in February, 1890.

The governor showed up the ridiculousness of such loose legislation as this in his veto message, which must have made some of the "experienced" members of both houses blush with shame. There was not a lawyer in either house sharp enough to see the snags in the bill, although a business man like Governor Rusk they were very plain.

CAUSTIC WITH THE PRESIDENT.

The Jeffersonian Democracy are getting out of patience with President Cleveland. The days when he went into the executive room in his shirt sleeves and tucked down to business like a plain enterprising countryman, and ate his pie without using knife or fork, have passed away, and to day he has relapsed into a state of exclusiveness. Therefore, presidents have gone to the theater like other sensible people, not contorting themselves better than other wall-to-wall citizens, but Mr. Cleveland has decided that he must have a private entrance cut into a private box, something like the crowded heads have in the old world, so that he may "not be annoyed by the vulgar curiosity of the common herd who go to theaters." The republican papers do not care whether he enters the theatre by a private entrance or by the main door, or whether he goes at all, but the medical papers are in a different frame of mind. The Louisville Courier-Journal, the great democratic paper of Kentucky, breaks forth in this strain:

"At a time when all is mean and sordid in our shoddy society is turning itself inside out to apo the manners of the titled and rich aristocracy of Christendom, when ill-got wealth is tumbling heels over head in the scramble for a coarse, corrupting pre-eminence in parvenus, when the old state courtesy of simple manhood and womanhood which once were a grace and charm in their own in our public walks and ways are being ingested in the bog-always of new made greatness, its import and trappings, it was meet fit and proper that a democratic president and democratic administration should rise above the mud and mire of fraud and cant, and themselves upon the high and solid ground of self-honoring reality, with its honest lessons of modesty and truth. A private entrance to a private box because the crowd "annoyed" him! Bah and pit upon such tomfoolery! Or what birdlings doth this our birdie feed that he hath grown so sensitive?"

Men of real dignity do not act the coward in regard to the gaze or touch of the people. It is the other class of men who try to make themselves exclusive for effect sake. It has been said that "men born to the purple are never afraid of soiling it by contact with their kind," but it seems that the democratic president who promised a return of Jeffersonian simplicity at the white house, is becoming more exclusive than any other president, and therefore there is a meaning to the caustic remark of the Courier-Journal. It is such paper as that, and the New York Sun, the New York World, the Washington Post, and several others, that count the administration as one of the pinchbeck sort.

THE WORK OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The legislature of Wisconsin adjourned sine die at four o'clock, Friday, April 13, having been in session since January 12th, making 91 days. The thirty-eighth session has been the longest since 1858, when it extended through 125 days. The number of bills which passed both houses was 576, and 533 became laws by sanction of the governor, and 17 without his approval, and 23 bills were vetoed. About 40 bills which passed both houses were recalled from the executive office for correction. These bills would have all been vetoed had they not been recalled. A portion of this number were amended and a portion indefinitely postponed.

Twelve bills remained in the executive office at the close of the session, all of which would have been vetoed had there been sufficient time to enough members present to receive them.

Among the more important bills which became laws are the following:

Appropriating $8,000 for the erection of a monument on the battle field of Gettysburg.

Permitting any county to expend not to exceed $5,000 annually for the education of its deaf mutes.

Applying the general election laws of 1883, relating to cities of over 50,000 inhabitants, to municipal as well as general elections.

Providing that when a county seat has been established in one place for a period of fifteen years or more, and $10,000 has been expended on permanent buildings, the same shall not be removed nor shall any application for removal be submitted to a vote except on the petition of at least one-half of the freeholders of the county.

Authorizing county agricultural societies to levy a tax upon their members to pay off indebtedness.

Making the keeping of a house of ill-fame or the leasing of property for immoral purposes punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 or maximum imprisonment of one year.

Appropriating $55,000 for the use of the state board of supervision in erecting additional buildings at the state public school for dependent children at Sparta.

Empowering county boards of supervisors to appoint three trustees who shall govern the county insane asylum.

Appropriating $476,300 for the support of the seven state charitable, reformatory and penal institutions for the next two years.

Prohibiting polling places from being held in saloons. This is to prevent Milwaukee from emulating Chicago.

Permitting common councils or village boards to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor to any man who has been convicted of drunkenness during the previous year.

Requiring the subject of free textbooks to be made an issue at each annual school meeting; also making fifteen days' imprisonment the minimum penalty for the desecration of parent or children in due estate circumstances by either parent.

Permitting the sentencing of an imbecile or drunkard to confinement in an asylum, provided the state be relieved from the cost of maintenance.

Providing for the appointment of four wardens at $600 annual salary each and three fish wardens whose aggregate salary shall not exceed $2,500 annually.

Appropriating $15,000 to the persons injured and to the heirs of those killed in the capitol disaster.

Requiring children, on conviction of crimes, to be confined to the infirmary school till 21 years of age, instead of 18, or until discharged in due process of law. This is to prevent boys under 21 from being sent to the state prison.

Appropriating $175,000 for the completion and equipment of the newsroom hall.

Making it a penal offense for any commission engaged in the erection of public buildings to exceed the appropriations made thereto. This is a dig at the university regents.

Authorizing the levy of a state tax of $20,000 for the year 1887 or 1888, if the opinion of the governor and secretary of state, it shall be required.

INDIGNANT IRISHMEN

MAKE PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS UNCOMMONLY LIVELY.

Saundersson Makes an Assertion That Brings Upon Him the Wrath of Hendy, Redmond and Sexton, Who Create Intense Excitement by the Free Use of Very Vigorous English.

LONDON, April 16.—There was an exciting scene in the house of commons Friday night, during which the Irish members lost their tempers and the house was turned into a madhouse. Sir William Vernon Harcourt, after criticizing the provisions of the chamberlain, declared that he would now withdraw his speech with Harcourt for the promotion of their own personal ends, said regarding the taunts of the government leaders that American gold Brad and fostered discontent in Ireland, that no one got less reason to complain of the effects of American gold than the landlords, since no one got more of it than they did—through their rents.

Maj. Saundersson said that the National League derived its chief support from dynamics across the Atlantic. He did not mean to say that the National League themselves committed acts of bloodshed, but they were associated with men whom they knew to be murderers.

Healy rose to call Saundersson to order.

The speaker said he admitted the gravity of the charges made by Maj. Saundersson, but as they could be met in debate, he could not interfere at this juncture.

Healy said that, regardless of the consequences, he would say that so far as the reporters referred to him Saundersson was a liar.

The speaker ordered Healy to withdraw his words.

Healy refused to withdraw his language unless Saundersson was also ordered to withdraw his and reiterated his assertion that he was a liar.

John Redmond rose and said that, too, he wished to go upon record as stigmatizing Maj. Saundersson as a liar.

W. H. Smith moved that Mr. Healy be suspended. A division upon the motion was taken, resulting in its adoption by a vote of 118 against 52, and Healy walked out of the house amid a storm of cheers, from the Parliament. Saundersson essayed to resume his speech when Thomas Sexton insisted upon his withdrawal of his offensive statement.

Saundersson replied saying that Sexton was a member of the League and that he was also a member.

Sexton said that Saundersson believed that he (Sexton) had no knowledge that Saundersson was a murderer.

Saundersson answered that Sheridan, against whom a true bill was found for conspiracy in the Phoenix bank murders, was a member of the executive committee, and the committee must have known his character.

Sexton—You are a liar and a coward, and if you was any where but on the floor of this house I would administer to you the thrash you deserve.

The house had been intensely excited, could stand, and Sexton's last words had scarcely left his lips when a scene of uproar and confusion suddenly witnessed in a legislative body took place. Everybody was on his feet shouting and gesticulating and the speaker frantically appealing for order. The disorder having no definite aim finally subsided and the speaker requested Saundersson, Sexton, and Redmond to retract their remarks which request all three gentlemen complied with.

A motion was made to recall Healy, but the speaker would not sustain it, saying that nothing could be done toward quieting the house except the withdrawal of the house.

Sexton then resumed his speech, saying among other things, that Sexton was present at a meeting at which Patrick Egan was made secretary of the Clan-na-Gael, which was a society of Irish murderers in America. The house then adjourned.

The Standard says, aent the above episode: "The scene, painful as it was, disclosed the fact that colleagues of Egan, Sheridan, and Byrne have at least the grace to be ashamed in parliament of their old friends."

Labouchere writes to the Times that Lord Randolph Churchill urged the Orange bill and received the support of the press and advocates of conciliation, and therefore he ought not to object to the doctrine of fresh fighting when their rights are invaded.

BRIEFLIES.

The signal service predictions are clear weather and warmer temperature.

Fred Hauchett, Frank Jackman and Fred Sheldon went to Indian Ford today after a few wagon loads of fish.

Manager Myers has already received several letters from Madison, Edgerton, and other cities asking for reserved seats Tuesday night.

The members of Oriental Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and their families held an enjoyable social at Castle hall last evening.

Springing streets when a halt must be made over little while to chop icicles off the wagon seems decidedly like Christmas.

Mrs. Thomas Cloonan, of Gold street, fifth ward, died this afternoon after a short illness. The funeral will be announced later.

Rev. Theodore Clifton, pastor of the First Congregational church, at Rockford, Ill., will occupy the Congregational church pulpit to-morrow.

J. L. Spellman, now living in the third ward, will soon move into the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Elizabeth Aiden, on Jackson street.

Andrew Downs is resting somewhat easier. The doctors say, however, that his recovery is impossible, as the lower part of his body is completely paralyzed.

C. B. Conrad bought the house and lot next to the shoe factory this afternoon for seventeen hundred dollars. L. B. Carl's acted as auctioneer.

Medium priced houses are decidedly scarce. The demand is greater than the supply and house-hunters have much trouble in finding anything to suit their tastes.

Judge Sale has appointed W. H. Gray, of Harmony, guardian of John Dickerson. Mr. Dickerson, who has an interest in considerable property at Johnston's, is now at the Mendota insane asylum.

Fred H. Criger, a graduate of the Leaside Institute of Peamount, Chicago, is writing visiting cards at L. L. Clarke's shoe store. Every admirer of the peamount should have a sample of his work.

Railroad men claim that as soon as work teams can be put on there will be some extensive improvements on the Evansville cut-off. According to reports the road bed is to be raised three inches and ballasted for regular traffic.

Hereafter jewelers are to receive daily reports from the Westbury observatory over a special wire. It will be put up to-morrow and will run from the Milwaukee & St. Paul depot. The poles used will be those of the electric light company.

One west side clerk that went to a party the other night found when he reached home that his shoes were no longer mate. He still wonders how they came to be changed, while his friends, to whom he tried to explain it, continue to tell and over "another young man gone wrong."

One of the county officials who went to Beloit the other day, thought it would cost less to pay the conductor than to buy a ticket before starting. He was unpleasantly surprised to find that cost almost half as much again, and now pines for a little more inter-state commerce law.

Owing to the fact that a large number of the city school teachers are members of the Choral Union and are to sing with Gilmore on Monday afternoon and evening, the public schools will be closed on Monday afternoon. The manager of the entertainment has made a special price to all school children for the matinee—25 cents.

Seven maidens sat in the county clerks office to-day and puzzled over the question of School Superintendent H. C. Thom. Six were anxious for second grade teachers' certificates, which remain good for two years, while the seventh confined her ambition to the third grade.

The usual monthly gospel temperance meeting will be held by the W. O. T. U., at the Wayde Inn on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend.

—Mary Hamilton, who appears at the opera house this evening, is an accomplished actress. Her acting is refined, graceful and artistic, yet full of spirit and force. The role of May Blossom is not one of those in which an actress may achieve success by merely looking pretty. Miss Hamilton acts, and acts intelligently and strongly.

They are won by soldiers.

Evidence of the value of Alice's Posture plaster comes in the following letter from Charles Yeager, of Company A, 11th U. S. Infantry, stationed at Fort Sully, Dakota:

I have been using Allcock's Posture Plaster for the last ten years, and feel quite lost if I have not had a dozen in my possession. In this section of the country we have at times very severe cold. When the thermometer is below zero, I find that Allcock's Posture Plaster on the pit of the stomach is invaluable. They appear not only to warm the body, but to invigorate the digestion. At times I have been greatly troubled with a lame back. Two Allcock's Posture Plaster placed upon the spine invariably cure me in two or three days. Some times I have had a severe coughing very cold and cold. An Allcock's Posture Plaster relieved me of the throat and on the chest, and one between the shoulder blades, have invariably afforded me immediate relief and a quick cure.

PHILADELPHIA.

Mr. J. R. Blessdale has returned home from Europe.

Extensive preparations are being made for the Calico hop next Thursday night.

Dr. Wm. Bunn returned home yesterday afternoon from Oberlin, Ohio, where he was called several days ago on professional business.

OBITUARY.

FRANK P. ROGERS.

The messenger of death has honored about the home of Mrs. Lucy Rogers on Jackson street, for many months, slowly but surely fastening his icy fingers upon the life of her son, Frank, fulfilling his mission yesterday afternoon, bearing out from the frail casket and the sodden home the immortal life of the patient sufferer. Frank was in his nineteenth year. In October last he was attacked with a congestive cold while working in Evansville. Consumption speedily followed the attack, and it was soon apparent that his life was slowly ebbing away. During all the weary months of suffering he had been sustained by an abiding faith in God and while his hope for recovery was strong, he was fully resigned to death if it met him. He was a member of Court Street church and Sabbath school and his Christian experience dating back to January 1886, gave evidence to the fact that his character was being moulded for the future life. With all the hopes and fears so peculiar to the treacherous disease, he was patient and thoughtful of the comfort of the friends who watched over him, and his death was peaceful.

The sorrow-stricken home will share the sympathy of many friends in the hour of trial and sad bereavement.

The funeral will occur at Court Street church at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Subject 1st L. L. 5. Why is Christ precious to Christians?
